

It takes a village to raise a child.

Omaha

When you were born, you cried and the world rejoiced. Live your life so that when you die, the world cries and you rejoice.

White Elk

I do not think the measure of a civilization is how tall its buildings of concrete are, But rather how well its people have learned to relate to their environment and fellow man.

Sun Bear, Chippewa Tribe

Our fathers gave us many laws. These laws were good. They told us to treat all people as they treated us; that we should never be the first to break a bargain; that is was a disgrace to tell a lie; that we should speak only the truth.

Chief Joseph, Nez Pierce

Grown men can learn from very little children for the hearts of little children are pure. Therefore, the Great Spirit may show to them many things which older people miss.

Black Elk

The contrary winds may blow strong in my face, yet I will go forward and never turn back.

Teedyuscung, Lenape

A photograph of a sunset or sunrise with the sun low on the horizon, casting a warm glow. Bare tree branches are silhouetted against the bright sky.

Treat the earth well. It was not given to you by your parents, it was loaned to you by your children.

Ancient Indian Proverb

A photograph of a lush green forest with tall trees and sunlight filtering through the canopy.

Love is something you and I must have. Without love our self-esteem weakens. With it we are creative. With it we march tirelessly. With it, and with it alone, we are able to sacrifice for others.

Chief Dan George

A photograph of a sandy beach at sunset, with a calm sea and a clear sky.

The more you understand, the more you will trust and the less you will fear.

Ojibway

A photograph of a river flowing through a rocky landscape, with a small waterfall in the foreground.

Whatever you do in life, do the very best you can with both your heart and mind.
